

INSTALLATIONS

darc night

A FUMING WORLD! Forma & Lichtvision / Boom Collective

Modern day light pollution has created 'A Fuming World!' Our play-on-words describes how the World is furious and simply fuming about the amount of light pollution happening on her surface. The 'A Fuming World' cube takes a light hearted approach by geographically mapping out pollution with light and smoke penetrating the surface to create a visually appealing installation.

Setting a very low budget, our design had to be simple! The scaffolding cube was wrapped with clear palette stretch film on which a World map of light pollution was printed; holes were punched through the façade at the centres of pollution and inside the cube, floor mounted light fittings and a smoke machine 'beamed' light and 'breathed-fire' through the holes creating a red glowing and smoking, fuming World!.....all for £150!

From a distance one witnessed a large, slightly wonky, glowing and smoking object; getting closer to the cube the graphics revealed interesting and amusing detail on the World map, enabling the audience to appreciate facts and information about light pollution. Cheap, cheerful and effective!

Design Team:

Lichtvision – Karen Ihlau, Paolo Cocconi
Boom Collective – Mike Whitehurst, Patryk Zduniak

Equipment:

8 x Forma Fronteluce Pro in RGBW & DMX controller, 1 x Martin Magnum 850 smoke machine